

from house to HOME™

Living and Lifestyle Magazine of The Press-Enterprise

Everything in Boshnack's conservatory is pure and life giving: Reverse osmosis water hydrates, a special blend of pure essential oils keeps pests at bay, air conditioning cools, humidified air pampers, and controlled heat creates the optimum tropical climate. Even the floor is heat controlled.

Bring the outdoors indoors

Needing daily recovery from the pressures of Wall Street, Manhattanite Bob Boshnack employed Irish conservatory experts to plan his escape: a room with floor and ceiling windows cradling exotic, fragrant plants from around the world. "It's my Garden of Eden," Boshnack says of his New York conservatory, "like being in a tropical rainforest anytime." The glass haven sustains Plumaria from Hawaii in the winter and rare orchids year round. Boshnack has recently come across studies praising the stress reduction and longevity inducing effects of gardening. "I personally vouch for that," he confirms. "It really enables you to have a greater appreciation for life."

Article on Vision's Chairman, Bob Boshnack's Conservatory